The Florida Department of Transportation's Florida Rural Transit Assistance Program (RTAP), administered by the Center for Urban Transportation Research (CUTR) will be presenting the National Transit Institute's Managing Community Mobility course, June 26-27, 2012 at the University of South Florida in Tampa, Florida.

An email confirmation will be sent to registrants upon receipt of completed registration form.

The goal of this course is to help mobility, human service, and transit professionals examine creative approaches to resolve fragmented and/or duplicative transportation systems in order to create a more seamless and cost-efficient network with a customer-focused mindset.

Objectives:

- Introduce the concept of mobility management and its application to transportation operations at the community level.
- Identify funding resources available for implementing and operating mobility management programs.
- Describe how to develop the Coordinated Public Transit and Human Service Transportation Plan Coordinated Plan.
- Identify the necessary tools and resources to effectively implement a mobility management program.
- Present case studies of successful mobility management models.
- Discuss the skills of a mobility manager.

Who should attend: Current public transportation personnel, human service professionals, public transit agency staff and Board members, brokerage firm personnel, workforce professionals, state agency staff, planners, MPOs, TMAs, Council of Governments, and transit managers who coordinate mobility for all people.

Upon completion, each participant will receive a certificate of completion.
